Background:

The National Board for Professional Teaching Standards (NBPTS) is a national, nonprofit organization that has developed standards for highly accomplished teaching and a voluntary system to certify teachers who meet those standards. There are also NBPTS certificates for librarians and school counselors. The term of a certificate is 10 years and can be renewed.

Since 1999 state funding has been appropriated for a bonus for NBPTS-certified staff. In 2007 the Legislature provided in statute that certificated instructional staff who have attained NBPTS certification will receive a bonus each year they maintain the certification. The bonus is $5,000 in 2007-08 and increases annually by inflation.

As of December 2007, there were 1,803 NBPTS-certified instructional staff in Washington. Principals are certificated administrative, rather than certificated instructional, staff.

Summary of Second Substitute Bill:

Certificated instructional staff who have attained NBPTS certification receive a bonus for each year they are nationally certified, including if they later become certificated principals and maintain the certification.

Appropriation: None.

Fiscal Note: Available.

Effective Date: The bill takes effect 90 days after adjournment of session in which bill is passed. However, the bill is null and void unless funded in the budget.

Staff Summary of Public Testimony: (Education)

(In support) It takes the entire education community to educate children. It is important to have highly skilled and talented principals in order to be able to attract good teachers. If these individuals deserved the bonus in recognition of their skills, they should continue to receive it. This will eliminate a disincentive for our best and brightest to seek the principalship. There are no incidents of turning around a failing school without leadership. There is no better way to demonstrate the state's commitment to quality teaching then by recognizing the importance of building leaders.

(Opposed) None.

Staff Summary of Public Testimony: (Appropriations)

(In support) The Washington Association of School Business Officials (WASBO) and the Association for Washington School Principals support this legislation. Originally, the WASBO supported the increase of the bonus from $3,500 to $5,000 for nationally certified teachers. This adjustment would allow principals to keep the bonuses they were getting as teachers before becoming principals. Passing this bill will also assist the state in retaining highly qualified teachers and principals.

(Opposed) None.
